“Walking on the Water”

The walk of faith for the child of God is really a call “to walk on the water.” It was Peter who responded to Christ’s call to walk on the water. The principle here is a straight forward one: Until you attempt the impossible, (until you are willing to walk on the water), you are notwalking the path of faith.

God will not call you “to climb a mountain” beyond His ability to see you reach the mountain peak. It may seem that God is calling you to do the impossible. However, just like a parent who urges a creeping infant to take his/her first faltering steps, attempting an impossible feat, so to speak, oftentimes, God urges us to do the impossible, to believe for the unbelievable and to see His invisible Hand at work.

Your faith may falter and grow dim, but it will never fail if you replenish it with “The Bread of Life” and a refreshing drink from “The Source of Life,” even the Lord Jesus Christ.

So step out from “your small world” of today, and step into God’s “big, wonderful world” of tomorrow!

Have a blessed week!
